Prize Fight Down the River.

The Bellairs Tribune says it is informed of a prize fight that took place on the West Virginia side of the river below Moundsville, on last Monday night, between Stephen Doty, of Pipe Creek, and Harry Ischappatt, of Dillie's Bottom.

Nine rounds were fought and Doty was declared the winner. There was no purse, the fight being merely to decide which was the better of the two in the manly art.

Before Squire Gillespy.

In Justice Gillespy's court on Saturday the case against William Fallon was continued until 7:30 this evening, on account of the absence of a witness for defense.

Nellie Ellsworth, charged with stealing $5 from Frank Desmond, was sent to jail in default of $100 bail, to await action by the grand jury.

The three boys charged with breaking open a car of watermelons, were held for court.

In Police Circles.

W. Hackenberger and George Swinor were arrested by Officers Moyer and Devlin for disorderly conduct, and William Harrison was arrested by Officer Carney for the same offense.

There were sixteen cases in police court Saturday morning. Twelve of them came from Madeline Hornbrook and Lucy Belmont's houses of ill fame, and the others were of the usual assorted kind.

There were six cases in the court in the evening. John Lazier, a disorderly, got $5 and costs and went to the hill. Paul Beckman, for the same offense, paid. William Howard, for indecency, paid $1 and costs. Two drunks and a vag completed the list.

George Gundling was run in by Officer Stamp for disorder on the island, and Pat Ilyland was sent to the hill for failing to leave town as he promised when let go in police court Saturday morning.

Thomas King, a plain drunk, was put in late last night by Officer Scallay.

Kittie Lee's house was raided, and she, four women and two men arrested.

A Railroad Station Damaged by Fire.

Early Sunday morning fire was discovered in the Bellairs, Zanesville and Cincinnati station at Bellairs, and an alarm given that brought out all of the fire department. The fire started beneath the floor, about where the freight connected with the ticket office and waiting room, and spread south beneath the floor and up each side of the freight portion of the building with wonderful rapidity. It was a big fire, and looked as if the building and contents would be totally destroyed, but water was thrown so effectively that the fire was put out with only about $200 loss. The shed had been full of freight on Saturday, but five car loads were taken out that day and only a small bunch of household goods was left. These were damaged good, but the looking glass was not even broken. The ticket office and waiting room were not harmed. The building belongs to the Baltimore &amp; Ohio Railroad Company, and is fully insured, while the Bellairs, Zanesville and Cincinnati company loses nothing beyond the damage to the furniture noted.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

A Colored Cook on a B. &amp; O. Dining Car Meets an Awful Fate.

HE IS CROSSING UNDER A COKE CAR

When it is Moved, and the Life is Literally Crushed Out of Him by Squeezing Between the Truck and the Ties—He Was a Bachelor and Lived at Baltimore—Several Minor Casualties Yesterday.

Yesterday morning Joseph Shields, a colored man, was killed on the B. & O. track in the yard below Twenty-seventh street. Shields was employed as a cook on B. & O. dining cars. The crews on these cars change at the point where the accident occurred, the incoming crew looking and eating in a freight car neatly fitted up for the purpose. Shields was one of the resting crew occupying these quarters night before last. He got up about 5 o'clock yesterday morning, ate breakfast, and shortly after 6 started to go over to the river bank.

There was a train loaded with coke for the Belmont mill on a track which Shields had to cross, and he started to crawl beneath one of the cars. Just then the Belmont's "dinky" engine hitched on to one of the cars to haul it to the works. The train was pushed up a short distance, and then one car was detached and hauled away.

Subsequently Shields was found wedged between the hind truck of a car and the tie beneath. He was dead, with seven ribs broken and his side badly crushed, but not cut or bruised externally.

Coroner Schultz was notified, and examined the body and took the testimony of Lewis Walker and John W. Smith, other colored employees of the same car. He brought out the facts narrated above, and issued a certificate of death in accordance with them. The remains were turned over to G. Mendel & Co., to be prepared for burial, and will then be sent to his former home in Baltimore. He was a widower, aged about 45, and well liked by his fellow employees.

A Horse Fatally Injured.

Yesterday afternoon Jim O'Neal and a friend named Marlow were driving in a buggy hired from C. D. Thompson, when the horse frightened on Woods street, and ran off. In making a sudden turn into Sixteenth street the shaft of the buggy broke, and the sharp end of it kept punching the horse in the side. He at length became frantic, and plunged into a telegraph pole with such force as to break his back. The accident happened when the street was crowded, and attracted a large number of people. As soon as it was ascertained that the horse could not recover, Officer Orlington killed it to put it out of its misery. It was a valuable horse.

A Boy Run Over.

Yesterday afternoon, on Chapline street north of Twenty-third, a small boy was struck by a horse and knocked down, and the buggy ran over him, hurting him pretty badly. He was able to walk home, but was bleeding about the face. Just how the accident happened nobody seemed to know.

Shields of Honor Outing.

On Saturday a parade, followed by a picnic at Mozart park, was given by the Shields of Honor. The lodges which took part were: Fort Henry, No. 2; Zane, No. 1, and Eureka, No. 3. The event was a success, as there was a crowd of 2,500 persons at the park. There was a very creditable parade, the largest ever given by the lodge in Wheeling, and the second largest turnout in a parade this year. T. G. Maybury was the chief marshal, with John Minkemyer, from Fort Henry, William Schoonon, from Zane, and C. T. Thompson, from Eureka, as aides.

The committee of arrangements who had met to do in making the outing a success, were the following Shields: J. A. Woods, William Bradbury, William O'Neal, A. Bradbury, William Innes, Louis Gruppo, G. O. Smith, George Aecker, Ernest Rinehart and Charles Kildsling.

A Saloon Raided.

Last night Officer Scallay made an unexpected visit to the Washington Exchange saloon, on Market street, adjoining the Masonic temple. He found several women there, and arrested the whole outfit, preferring charges against Fred Wagner, the manager, for allowing prostitutes to loiter about his place and for selling on Sunday. Boss Thompson and Ida Wilson were arrested for loitering in the place.
